In order to increase student engagement with the practices of early drafting, peer feedback, and revision, every piece of writing students produce will happen on Wordpres this term. We are using a theme called Commentpress which allows simultaneous comments from many students on each text. It also allows for fullscreen writing to minimize distraction while drafting. In workshop writing, we will use an extension called Diigo, which enables active highlighting and notetaking on web texts, making for engaged online reading. I hope the site will also be useful to students as a rich portfolio of their work over the semester.
